

Business Partnership Between MINIKURA by Warehouse TERRADA and reoveru

- Providing our MINIKURA's closet function to reoveru's smartphone application -

Warehouse TERRADA (Shinagawa, Tokyo / CEO: Yoshihisa Nakano) is pleased to announce that our service "MINIKURA" forms a business partnership with reoveru co., ltd. (Shibuya, Tokyo / CEO: Tomohiro Yamashita, hereinafter reoveru) which is operating "Reoveru," a renovation service of used apartments, and provides MINIKURA's closet function to "Connectly App," a smartphone application by reoveru on April 12th, 2017.

"Connectly App" by reoveru is a smartphone application which enables to operate IoT devices and web services for home easily with a smartphone. We provide our MINIKURA's closet function to the application, and support its users to utilize a cloud storage service "MINIKURA" by Warehouse TERRADA which makes their home storage space smaller and maximizes their living quality.

Warehouse TERRADA has been providing a cloud storage service as a platform for living. With this business partnership, we are going to contribute to storage space issues in the home renovation market.

[About Connectly App] (<https://itunes.apple.com/us/app/connectly-app/id1159235047?mt=8>)

“Connectly App” links to IoT Devices and web services around the world and enables any user to operate various IoT Devices and web services easily with a smartphone. For customers of “Renoveru”, which is a renovation business provided by renoveru, the test marketing of “Connectly App,” in cooperation with SoftBank, has been conducted since this spring. First, the application was linked to “BOCCO” by Yukai Engineering, which enables users to set their application to automatically receive voice information such as the time their family come home, the weather they are going out and others.

[About MINIKURA’s closet function]
