

Warehouse TERRADA Launches ARCHI-DEPOT STOCK, the World's First Cloud Storage Service for Architectural Models

On Thursday, December 14, 2017, Warehouse TERRADA will begin providing the ARCHI-DEPOT STOCK web service enabling the storage of architectural models for 500 yen per month for one unit (100cm x 100cm x 45cm) and the management of architectural models using photographs.

Architectural models are imbued with the thought processes of architects and architects' studios along with the vital essence of architectural culture. They are also gaining attention for having high quality in terms of design and technique. However, architects are faced with the issues of lacking space to store their models and having no place to display their work and concepts. This service resolves these issues and also enables them to communicate their architectural model works worldwide via the web. It also provides the opportunity to display works in ARCHI-DEPOT Museum, an exhibition facility dedicated to architectural models rarely seen anywhere in the world, which opened last year on Tennoz Isle, Tokyo.

By enhancing functionality of the service in a variety of ways in the future, we will create a platform for architectural culture.
